The topic of the meeting was an opportunity to get to know the Expert Advisor, to present last year's activities of the Youth Council, and to discuss future cooperation between youth organizations and the city of Tuzla, daily problems that youth organizations face in their work, possible solutions to problems, as well as improving the position of young people in Tuzli. Daily workshops

The youth organization Svitac continued with its daily interactive and online activities. Younger participants did age-appropriate creative and educational activities with the help of local and international volunteers. This month they talked about different animals, land and water, jellyfish, shells, the beach and swimming. The youngest participants enjoyed the creative part and modeling fun objects. The group continued with music workshops, practicing rhythms and repeating songs learned in the previous months. Participants continued to learn and write numbers; this month they learned to write the numbers 14-16. They did warm-up exercises and yoga for children, and every Thursday they danced, played sports and practiced reading and listening to stories. The goal of these educational activities is for children to develop their imagination and to express their creativity using various materials, and to develop motor skills, memory, a sense of tolerance and respect for others and adopt good behavior. All workshops are implemented with an educational visual method with pictures and video.

Age 13+ participated in discussions/workshops on the topics: hate speech in our society, migration, interculturality, volunteering abroad, films and musicals. In this way, we want to provide young people with a safe and neutral space, where they can express their opinion.

In the English and German workshops, they worked on practicing grammar and everyday communication, reading and translating short texts and phrases, and interesting projects.

Guitar workshops

The participants of the guitar workshops rehearsed the learned material and worked on new etudes and compositions.

Samba workshops

The group played samba percussion, and worked on their own composition. The composition is called "Snail".

Summer Camps 2023

Youth organization Svitac held Summer Camps from August 21 to 25 and Children's Day on August 26. Summer camps included creative, language and music camps. The workshops were held every day from Monday to Friday and each lasted 2 and a half hours. This year the summer camps were educational, fun, colorful and an event for the participants, where they can meet new friends and learn new things.

The creative camp realized a number of different activities on the theme "Let's learn together". Participants learned a number of interesting facts about art, Great Britain and Germany. All works and posters were part of the exhibition at Children's Day. Participants of the language camp had the opportunity to explore many different areas on the topic of "Five Senses" in English and German. International volunteers from Great Britain and Germany helped and supported the activities, talked with the children and encouraged them to speak a foreign language. This year's music camp brought together a group of young teenagers. They got acquainted with musical instruments, learned basic rhythms, and worked on composing a melody that was presented on Children's Day.

The children's day was also the grand finale where the participants of all three camps presented the results they achieved during the week. Parents and friends enjoyed the exhibition and program prepared by local and international volunteers. Participants enjoyed visiting the different stations (obstacle games, face painting and quiz stations). They also received gifts during the Bingo game and enjoyed with their friends. The Summer Camps and Children's Day project is an annual event of the Svitac Youth Organization, which brings together a large number of citizens of the Brčko District of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

International Day of Democracy

Youth organization Svitac celebrated the International Day of Democracy with participants 16+!

The group discussed the focus on the key role of youth in advancing democracy; participants also agreed that their voice should be included in decisions that have a major impact on their world.

In the first part of the workshop, one of the local volunteers gave a presentation on democracy: why it is important and why it plays a vital role in civilization. The next part was a Kahoot quiz on the advantages such as the right to vote and the disadvantages of democracy - uniformed voters with many more examples. Svitac believes that already at an early age we should learn about the importance of understanding democracy, and to appreciate the privileges of a democratic society. Until today (September 15), the International Day of Democracy is celebrated according to the UN Convention.

Happy International Day of Peace!

Every year the world celebrates the International Day of Peace on September 21. The UN General Assembly declared this a day dedicated to strengthening the ideals of peace. Youth organization Svitac celebrated the International Day of Peace with participants aged 4-6 and 17+. We asked the youngest participants to describe the term "peace" in their own words! After that, we created a symbolic bird from handprints. Our international volunteer Jonathan gave a presentation on peace to a group of 17+; the presentation resulted in a dynamic discussion, and the participants created a poster on which they presented their personal definitions of peace. Our team conveyed the message that we can coexist and learn how to avoid or resolve disagreements.

The continuation of all activities of the Svitac Youth Organization is planned for October.

Teaching and professional staff from Bosnia and Herzegovina trained in methods and techniques for supportive classrooms Teaching and professional staff of secondary schools in Bosnia and Herzegovina regularly face multiple challenges in teaching, working with parents, school administration and in the education system of our country. It is precisely the complexity of the administration and allocations for scientific research that reduce the possibility for teaching and professional staff to create their activities and work in an adequate and supportive manner for young people and children.

Through the second training module Learn, think and act! for the teaching and professional staff of secondary schools in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the participants considered ways and methods through which they can improve their work in classes and the assembly, and worked on thinking about a better connection of experts in education. The participants dealt with adolescence, the stages of their own and students' experiential learning, learning styles, and Bloom's taxonomy. A large part of the module was devoted to methods and strategies that teachers can use on a daily basis, with students or colleagues.

The module specifically dealt with approaches and ways of asking students questions. The participants pointed out that these sessions on the module are extremely supportive because they become more aware of how to create a more authentic approach to teaching and work at school, which ultimately supports students and their development.

During the three-day module, the participants of the training had the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the work of the Association of High School Students in BiH, and to give their suggestions on how to better connect the local teams of the Association and how to further motivate students to participate in the work of the Association.

The training program was created in response to the need to provide support to teaching and professional staff of secondary schools in the development of competencies required for successful planning and implementation of the learning and teaching process based on the principles of experiential learning and better connection. 24 motivated professionals who directly or indirectly work with children and young people through formal education are currently participating in the training.

September in Busovača - how young people contribute to change?

September left very interesting lines written in the book about young people in Bosnia and Herzegovina. On the pages about September in Busovača, sentences about sports, education, opportunities, joy, medals and songs stand out.

Young people can quickly recognize the needs of their peers in the community - these needs are generally very similar, and often the majority of young people from smaller communities are looking for opportunities for themselves in the surrounding towns. This September, Association "Princip" from Busovaca made an effort to ensure that young people in Busovača have content created in which they want to participate, which is offered in their town.

At the closing ceremony of the Youth Festival in Busovača, diplomas and medals were awarded to the most successful young people in the activities held as part of the event. With cheers and laughter, the participants proudly left the hall with medals, some even with several of them, and the evening was completed by Amel Ćurić's concert. Trying to make this September interesting for young people in Busovača, the Association "Princip" organized sports activities and educational workshops. As part of the sports activities, a competition was organized in football, volleyball, basketball and table tennis, and educational workshops focused on entrepreneurship, healthy lifestyles and communication skills. All these topics were characterized by young people as extremely useful and important, as topics that belong to their everyday life and about which they really want to learn, which they showed through their active participation.

The Busovača Youth Festival is supported by the Institute for Youth Development KULT, the FBiH Youth Council, the Busovača Municipality Youth Council, the Federal Ministry of Culture and Sports and local businessmen.

Association "Princip" continues to work with the Institute for Youth Development KULT on its empowerment through the process of assessing and strengthening organizational capacities as part of the Strength of the Local program, with the aim of becoming a strong and recognizable organization that will contribute even more to young people in the community, be their initiator and address for the realization of ideas.

The role of public advocacy in the development of future youth leaders

The ninth module of the Learn, Think and Act training has also been completed! which was devoted to a very important topic - public advocacy and lobbying as a process in which an individual or group tries to influence decision makers, organizations or the general public in order to support or change a particular policy, law or practice.

This can include organizing campaigns, lobbying decision makers and promoting awareness of important issues. This module is one of the key steps in the training of youth leaders, as it provides them with the tools and knowledge to become advocates of positive change in their communities.

The module brought the concepts and skills related to public advocacy and lobbying closer to the participants through a series of interactive workshops, lectures, practical exercises and press conference simulations, and they had the opportunity to better understand how to influence decision makers and how to shape policies that will have a positive impact on their communities. . The participants also worked on developing a strategy that includes goals, targets, messages and tactics of the communication process.

These topics not only provided theoretical knowledge, but also encouraged young people to actively engage in solving problems in their communities.

Through their potential future advocacy and lobbying efforts, youth leaders will become a force to shape a better future for their environment. UMiD training continues to inspire young people to be advocates of positive change and to never stop learning, thinking and acting for a better tomorrow and a better society.

Jajce: Project: "Together towards women's health and for a better tomorrow"

In the rural areas of Bosnia and Herzegovina, especially in the Central Bosnian Canton and the city of Jajce, women face various challenges that significantly affect their physical and mental health. The project called "Together towards women's health and for a better tomorrow" was initiated by and implemented in the technical organization by the youth club "Dijamant" Jajce, with generous support of DM drogerie markt d.o.o. Sarajevo-Ilidža.

This project aims to solve the many problems faced by women in rural communities through education, support and empowerment.

Below are some of the key issues facing women in rural areas of Jajce:

1. Lack of information about proper nutrition and healthy habits:

Women in these communities often do not have access to basic information about proper nutrition and healthy habits. The project will provide education on the importance of a balanced and healthy diet.

2. Lack of physical activity:

Many women do not have the opportunity to participate in regular physical activity, which can lead to a lack of physical fitness and an increased risk of health problems. The project will organize sports activities adapted to women of all age groups, in order to encourage physical activity.

The goal of these activities is to raise awareness of the importance of regular physical activity and playing sports as the best form of prevention against non-communicable diseases and the most effective way to preserve health. Moving and maintaining good form is one form of self-care. This kind of care prevents the onset of disease and increases the quality of life.

3. Stress and pressure:

Women in the rural part of Jajce often face various forms of stress and pressure, be it family obligations, financial difficulties or other life situations. The project will provide support in managing stress and promote mental health.

4. Reproductive health:

Women do not have easy access to information and services related to reproductive health, including contraception, prevention of sexually transmitted infections and family planning. The project will provide education and support to enable women to make informed decisions about their reproductive health.

5. Education and career of young women:

Young women in rural areas face challenges in education, career and personal development. The project will provide mentoring, support and educational programs to help them achieve their goals.

This project will be implemented in four smaller municipalities in Bosnia and Herzegovina, with two municipalities from the Republika Srpska and two from the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The selected locations are Jajce, Mrkonjić Grad, Ključ and Šipovo, which facilitates the organization and implementation of activities. The project team will work with local experts and volunteers to provide support to women in these communities.

The three main project activities are:

1. Educational programs on proper nutrition and physical activity:

This activity will include women aged 18 to 40 and will include group exercises, walks, running and learning volleyball skills. The goal is to encourage women to engage in regular physical activity and a balanced diet.

2. Workshops and counseling on mental health:

This activity will focus on women aged 25 to 55 and will include workshops on stress management, emotional resilience and maintaining good mental health. It will provide individual and group counseling for women facing mental challenges.

3. Educational programs for young women:

This activity will be conducted with young women aged 16 to 25 and will include workshops on reproductive health, sexuality education, careers, communication skills and personal development. The goal is to support young women in achieving their educational and professional goals.

The project will have numerous positive effects on the participants, including increased health awareness, adoption of healthy habits, improvement of mental health, better understanding of reproductive health, and support in education and career. It will also empower women to become active members of their communities and advocates for their own health.

The project "Together towards women's health and for a better tomorrow" has long-term goals of improving the health and well-being of women in the rural part of Jajce and the surrounding areas. Through education, support and skills development, this project will contribute to creating a healthier and happier tomorrow for all participants and their communities.
